Mayor Made Reputation in Fight for Cheaper Bread

TOLEDO, Dec. 15—Mayor Adolph inence early in his administration by fighting for cheaper bread for this city, and twenty-four prominent business men of Tiffin, were under federal indictment today charging conspiracy to manufacture and sell liquor.

It was alleged that a "million dollar" liquor ring was in existence

The first count in the indictment lists 42 overt acts.

In addition to Mayor Unger the following men are named:

COOLIDGE FREES ALL POLITICAL PRISONERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—President Coolidge today commuted the sentences of all the so-called political prisoners still remaining in federal penitentiaries for war-time offenses.

The prisoners who are to be liberated under the president's decree were convicted in Chicago, Kansas City and Sacramento.

The commutation of sentences were granted upon recommendations of Attorney General Daugherty and a special commission composed of former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Bishop Brent, former chaplain of the A. E. F., and James G. Harbord, former assistant chief of staff of the army.

JAP QUAKE IS LAID TO KITCHEN REFUSE

Dumping of Garbage Threw Earth's Equilibrium Out, Says French Scientist

PARIS, Dec. 15.—Japan's earthquake was caused by the accumulation of kitchen refuse on the earth's surface and not by an unexplainable inner movement of the earth's molten center.

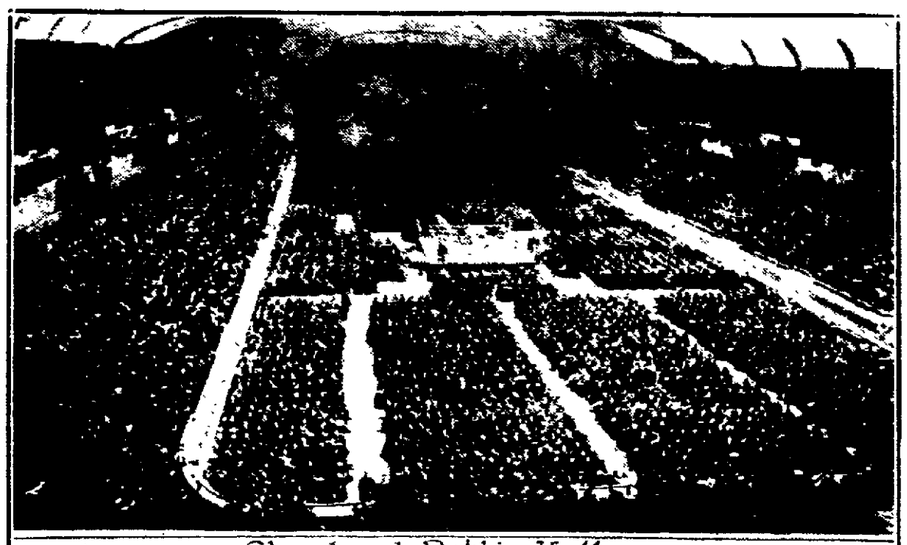
That's the theory of the learned Adrien Guebhard, expressed in a thesis recently read before the French Academy of Sciences.

Tokio and Yokahama grew too fast, M. Guebhard pointed out, and the steady accumulation of garbage, layer after layer, year after year, finally brought the earth's crust to the saturation point.

Then, one fine morning, a not too thrifty Japanese housewife dumped into her garden a particularly large quota of kitchen refuse. Like the fatal last drop of water and the straw that broke the camel's back the last can of garbage destroyed the earth crust's hydrostatic balance — hence the earthquake.

M. Guebhard's thesis, couched in highbrow French, Latin and Greek, was printed in it's entirety in the Journal Officiel, the newspaper in which state decrees are published before they can become laws.

WHERE G. O. P. CONVENTION WILL PROBABLY BE HELD.



Political supporters of President Calvin Coolidge have about decided that the 25-year-old practice of holding the Republican national convention in Chicago will be abandoned in 1924, and that the convention will go to Cleveland, O. The delegates would gather in the Cleveland Public Hall, interior of which is here shown. The hall was erected at a cost of $6,000,000 and seats 12,000 people.

DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS HELP CONSERVATIVE REPUBLICANS IN BATTLE WITH RADICALISM

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1923

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—Coalition government may be too formal a name but in actual practice there is developing in the senate and house an informal combination of conservative votes from the Republican and Democratic parties which is for the moment blocking the radicals.

The refusal of the Democratic caucus to adopt a resolution proposed by its own radicals providing for a fusion with the insurgent Republicans in an attempt to overthrow the house Republican organization and rearrange the places on the state of committees is an outcropping of the same conservatism which on the senate side led Sen. Bruce of Maryland, Democrat, to abandon party lines and vote for Senator Cummins of Iowa, Republican, for the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee instead of Senator LaFollette, Republican or Senator Smith of South Carolina, Democrat. Not that Mr. Smith is a radical but the insurgent Republicans had thrown their support to him to prevent Mr. Cummins' election and Senator Bruce made up his mind that a victory for Mr. Smith under the circumstances was a triumph for the radical elements.

Back of the fight in the senate is an anticipated struggle on the famous section "15A" of the transportation act which Mr. Cummins sponsored and which the radicals want that section of the law retained as do many of the investors who held railroad securities. The clause gives the limit of rail-

RURAL CARRIERS WILL NOT WORK CHRISTMAS DAY

Rural carriers for the first time in many years will not make their regular trips on Christmas Day this year.

Postmaster A. C. McDonald, of Coshocton received word Friday from the fourth assistant postmaster general to that effect.

McDonald asks that all patrons contemplating the mailing of parcels for delivery on rural routes mail them early enough to insure delivery late next week.

This action on the part of the postoffice department will allow thousands of rural carriers to spend Christmas Day with their families. It is hailed with delight by the Coshocton county carriers, who have not been allowed this privilege since the establishment of rural free delivery.

LONG ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH LATE FRI. OF F. I. COURTRIGHT

Was Superintendent of Water Works Dept of City Govt. 33 Yrs.

FUNERAL MON.

Coshocton lost a highly respected and valued public servant in the death of Floyd I. Courtright, aged 52, of Sycamore-st. who died at his home, Friday night at 9:30 o'clock.

His death was due to tuberculosis, from which he had been suffering for the past 15 months. For the past few weeks, Mr Courtright had been confined to his bed.

He served in the capacity of superintendent of the local city water works having retired 15 months ago on account of his health. He served 33 years as superintendent.

Mr. Courtright won the admiration of the citizens of Coshocton during the 1913 flood at which time he devoted much of his time in rescuing the flooded resident along the swollen rivers. He was frequently among the first to volunteer his services to aid in recovering drowned bodies.

At one time Mr. Courtright was a member of the volunteer fire department. He was assigned to this position largely because of his bravery and ability

He was married to Caroline Beingesser years ago. She died

BRITISH ARTIST RECALLS OTHER "LIVES," HE SAYS

"Goes Back" to Various Incarnations of Centuries Ago

ONCE A PRIEST

Lived As a Phoenician Gold Worker, Viking, Philosopher

LONDON, Dec. 15—A well known British artist declares himself to be a "man of six dead lives."

He is Henry G. Massey, principal of the Heatherly School of Art, and he is convinced that he has knowledge of six distinct lives or incarnations. He believes his memory has defied death and physical disintegration. He claims to remember when he was a priest deep in the mysteries of Isis in Egypt; days when as a Phoenician gold worker he fashioned subtle filigree work and days when he was a Greek philosopher.

His story recalls the sensation created at the British Association this year when Captain Pape, a young Scotch scientist, claimed there are men in the world with "time-machine brains" capable of living in the past.

"My recollections are unsought and require no effort," states Massey. "I am not dreaming when the recollections leap into mind. I simply 'go back.'

"A few days ago I 'went back' for twenty minutes. I walked up the Egyptian temple that I know so well, altho I have never been in Egypt. I saw a procession of priests winding between the great pillars. They stopped me, saying 'Come no further! You are not purified.'

"My wife at that moment walked in from the next room, saying that she had felt unaccountably anxious on my account.

"There is a picture in my studio illustrating a Greek philosopher instructing a young girl beneath a

HARRISON TRIAL TO EXTEND INTO NEXT WEEK, INDICATION

COLUMBUS, Dec. 15 — The trial of Daniel Harrison, former general manager of the defunct R. L. Dollings Company of Ohio charged with making false statements in the sale of stock will be continued into next week, it was indicated today. Court was to adjourn at noon today.

Harrison resumed the stand in his own defense this morning, attempting to prove negotiations between himself and Lindley M. Morton, President of a Pennsylvania oil men company which led up to the acquisition of a cement plant at Nazareth, Pennsylvania by the Phoenix Portland Cement Co. of Ohio, a Dollings subsidiary. Much of the testimony was ruled out by Judge Duncan as immaterial.

Mexican People Are Supporting Obregon Government, Claim

REVOLT LOCAL

War Department Officials Are Satisfied With Situation

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15— Federal troops on the offensive against the rebels in the state of Jalisco are advancing in the direction of Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city.

General Angel Flores, governor of the state of Sinaloa, who renounced his presidential candidacy in an effort to avert civil war, is attempting to mediate between the rebels and the government to restore peace.

General Flores has sent messages to Adolfo De La Huerta, civilian chief of the revolutionaries, and P. Elias Calles, suggesting a conference.

The Sinaloa governor appealed to De La Huerta "to consider well his attitude and to spare no effort to restore peace in the republic."

In his message General Calles,

LLOYD GEORGE FOE HURT OWN CHANCES

Said He Would Quit If Wily Welchman Returned to Fold—Which He Did

LONDON, Dec. 15.—John Zore, defeated Liberal candidate in the last English general election, now probably is a firm believer in the old Maxim, "Speak in haste and repent at leisure."

Zore contested East Lewisham Division in the election, but came out at the bottom of the poll. In his election addresses he professed himself to be an avowed anti-Lloyd Gorgeite, and at one of his meetings he was carried away by his hatred of the wily Welshman to the extent that he declared that if ever Lloyd George returned to the ranks of the Liberal Party he (Zore) would throw up his candidature.

Today it is common knowledge that Lloyd George has returned to the Liberal fold, and so Zore finds himself compelled to keep out of the fray at the present election.

In an address to the electors, Zore declares that fate has decided the issue, but he will fight on the side of the present Liberal candidate for the division as if the battle were his own.

LAZINESS MAIN REASON FOR BOBBING HAIR "PARIS-SOIR" PROBE DISCLOSES

PARIS, Dec. 15. Why do the women cut their hair? Laziness is the main reason according to an investigation recently made by the "Paris-Soir."

We no longer have the time to spend dressing our hair," said a number of bobbed-haired damsels who were questioned. "You know we have so many sports now and dancing and tennis, too. Then, too, our clothes tend more and more to assume a mass line and our silhouette would be ridiculous if we conserved the coiffure of Melisande."

A stroke of the comb, a few pins and alez-hop, one is ready for business or pleasure with the new coiffure. Long locks have gone the way of corsets, petticoats and other unfortunate feminine encumbrances. A Paris specialist declares that the present mode is attributable to the young Russian girls who have come to the capital since the war. Fluffy locks are very much passe. The new style is what the French call "enfiled hair," for the hair is cut in tiers and closely outlines the head.

It is said that 75 per cent of the society women in Paris have bobbed their hair this year, together with 85 per cent of the actresses and 90 per cent of the shopgirls. Employment bureaus declare that even servant girls are bobbing their hair and finding places just the same due to the shortage of domestics and the popularity of the vogue of the short head, called in Paris "a la fievre typhoide."

JAP MINISTER THANKS AMERICA FOR AIDING EARTHQUAKE VICTIMS

(EDITOR'S NOTE The following exclusive statement was issued by Viscount Goto, Japanese Minister of Home Affairs, to International News Service, expressing the gratitude of Japan to America for the speedy aid rendered following the recent devastating earthquake and fire.)

By VISCOUNT SHIMPEI GOTO,
Japanese Minister of Home Acairs.

TOKIO, Dec. 15—I am grateful for this opportunity to thank the American people in the name of Japan for the generous aid rendered in the time of our great distress. All Japanese, rich and poor, have been profoundly moved by the spontaneous expression of sympathy and goodwill on the part of America. The material aid rendered by America has been immense, and we have been encouraged in our work of reconstruction by the knowledge that we have so many good friends in all parts of the world

It is impossible to enumerate in a brief space the important relief and rehabilitation enterprises which have been carried out since the disaster. Every branch of the Government, Imperial and municipal, has applied itself to the task before it. A large part of the emergency relief burden has been lifted from our shoulders by the gifts of the American Red Cross. Through relief stations sufferers are being supplied with food and clothing and assistance is being given in the form of building materials to numerous housing projects.

Thru the courtesy and wisdom of the American representatives, General McCoy and Colonel Langhorn, easy connections were formed between American and Japanese Red Cross societies and the way smoothed for the transfer of American gifts to the appropriate Japanese administrative agencies. Naturally with our railways, telegraph lines, wharves and shipping disorganized confusion inevitably existed in the beginning, but the representatives of the United States, taking full account of our difficulties, helped us at every point. The co-operation of the American Ambassador and his entire staff with our Government has been perfect in every detail

We have from the beginning laid great stress upon the work of permanent rehabilitation and have sought to avoid the waste of supplies by using them to help families restore their homes and normal life. The water works system in Tokio has been restored to full service and the supply of pure water carefully safeguarded. There have been no epidemics in the stricken area. The street-car service has been re-established over large sections of Tokio and Yokohama, and within a short time all of the lines will be opened again.

Railway connections with other parts of Japan have been restored.

"MASTERPIECE" IS PAINTED IN BUTCHER SHOP

Wayman Adams, Depicter of Still Life Picks Queer Setting

HOGS FEATURED

"Thinrind" Shows Meat, Butcher's Apron and Lard Bucket

CENTERVILLE, Ind., Dec. 15—Wayman Adams, portrait and still-life painter of two continents, a master of the pallet and brush, produced his "masterpiece" here the other day in a butcher shop.

A strange story surrounds the painting of the interior of a shop owned by John H. Nixon, possessor of one of the finest collections of pictures in the Middle West.

It dates back to a time, many years ago, when Nixon, a butcher by trade, became interested in art. He began to collect pictures from the brushes of some of the prominent artists—and in doing so became acquainted with Wayman Adams. Adams was on a visit to Indianapolis recently, and Nixon invited him to come to Centerville.

A slaughter house might seem a queer place to produce a painting. But history records that the flame of genius has burned in many odd places. Rembrandt's most celebrated canvas was painted in a dissecting room. Rosa Bonheur's greatest pictures were first seen in stables, cattlepens and farmyards.

Adams's pitcure painted here measures 36 by 60 inches. It has three hogs' heads for central figures on the slaughter block, with several knives, a few pieces of meat, a butcher's coat, a pair of gloves and an old crock included. The high-lights are thrown in relief against a warmish red background, and a bright blue lard-bucket furnishes a touch of color

The technique of the artist is easily seen in the work. His bold brushwork and power of composition are things which make the

GOVT. PASSED UP 385,000,000 BARRELS OF OIL

When Teapot Dome Was Leased to Interests, says Sen. Walsh

QUOTES SINCLAIR

Declares Govt. Officials Placed Valuation Too Low Entirely

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 — The federal government has lost approximately 385,000,000 barrels of oil with an estimated value of about $300,000,000 thru the leasing of naval oil reserve lands to private interests Senator Walsh (D) of Montana charged today in a preliminary statement on the result of the senate's investigation of the leasing of Teapot Dome to Sinclair oil interests

Walsh made his estimates as a result of testimony before the committee by Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny of the Pan-American Petroleum Co which obtained the lease of naval reserve Number One, in Elk Hills, Calif.

Sinclair told the committee that Teapot Dome was worth about $100,000,000 to him," Walsh said.

Government officials estimate the oil capacity of Teapot Dome at 135,000,000 barrels, and Doheny said he expected to get about 250,000,000 barrels out of the reserve at Elk Hills.

Had the leases not been made by ex-Secretary of Interior Fall, the government would have received the money and the navy would have had the oil for reserve purposes in emergency

2—"It is a singular coincidence that Secretary Fall became associated with both Sinclair and Doheny after he leased the reserves to them. Another remarkable thing is that he got out of the Interior Department as soon as the leases were executed.

2—The Navy Department had a plan to construct oil storage along the seaboards of about 100,000,000 to be paid for, not by appropriations by congress but by royalties from oil taken out of the reserves that were leased. The regular course would have to have asked

"Life, Liberty And Injunctions"

WE RECALL no editorial utterance in recent months more timely and, withal, more temperate and sane than the one which appeared a few days ago in The Baltimore Evening Sun under the caption, "Life, Liberty and Injunctions."

The La Follette proposal to permit Congress to override Supreme Court decisions by a two-thirds vote seems to us uncalled for and positively dangerous. It would result in a complete upsetting of the governmental balance established by the fathers by making the Supreme Court a satellite of the legislative branch.

The Borah proposal which would require the concurrence of seven of the nine Justices in nullifying an act of Congress is not revolutionary, has considerable merit on its face and is at least worthy of the careful consideration of our people. The La Follette proposition has little to commend it and so much that excites condemnation that we believe Congress will give it scant attention.

The editorial to which we refer, however, does not directly involve either of these propositions, but does discuss in an able manner the growing tyranny of courts in the exercise of the judicial injunction and its correlative, the contempt proceeding, and we reprint it here and commend it to the careful consideration of every reader who would preserve our institutions intact. For it is the excesses of the courts themselves that give rise to just such revolutionary proposals as that fathered by Senator La Follette and his senatorial following:

Thomas Jefferson, altho doctrinaire in many of his beliefs, had given much sound thot to political problems. He had noted the tendency of governments to invade the private rights of men and he had observed also that this tendency may be so invidious as to reach dangerous proportions before being understood. He called this tendency of government a "gangrene which sooner than many are aware may reach the vitals of our political existence."

It was to provide an insurance against the swelling powers of government that he insisted upon the insertion of the Bill of Rights in the Constitution. The bill, which makes up the first ten amendments to the Constitution, is the charter of American liberties. In it are contained all those provisions against tyranny which were for so long the chief source of our pride in being Americans. Religious freedom, free speech, a free press, the right of assembly, the sacredness of the home against invasion, the right to a jury trial, the provision against double jeopardy—all these guarantees are in the Constitution because of the foresight of Thomas Jefferson.

In the Constitution they still are, even today. Whether they exist in actuality is another question. For by a curious and it sometimes seems almost a fortuitous development of judicial powers, none of them, except possibly religious freedom, has been left unabridged.

It is the judicial injunction, with its correlative, the contempt proceedings, which has been brot to a point where it more than once has proved itself stronger than all the guarantees in the Constitution. By the use of the injunction and by subsequent punishment under contempt proceedings, men have been deprived of the right of free speech, the freedom of the press has been disproved, peaceable assemblies have been prevented and even broken up, jury trial has been cast aside, and finally, by actual legal enactment, men have been and are being constantly put twice in jeopardy for the same offense.

According to constitutional historians, the injunction was devised originally as a means of preventing the commission of some threatened act whose results would be so serious as to be beyond repair by ordinary legal methods. When such an act threatened, it was deemed advisable to use the power of the law to prevent its commission.

Contempt proceedings likewise have an honorable origin. For it was clearly within reason that a judge should have the power to maintain order in his courtroom. And by an equally honorable extension, it was necessary that judges should be empowered to punish persons who deliberately presumed to block the execution of the court's orders. Men were wise enough to see that unless the court were clothed with the power to maintain its own dignity there would soon be no dignity left. They therefore granted this power, assuming that judges would be wise and temperate in its use.

What has happened has come about by means so gradual that few have been conscious how well these two seemingly wise jointures in our armor of defense have served men determined upon tyranny.

Among the first to suffer from the misuse of the injunction were the labor unions, and they have had neither the wit nor the means to make the general public understand that the limitation of their liberties meant as well the limitation of the liberties of all of us. But it is quite true that if an injunction can be had to prevent an assembly of laboring men it can be procured to prevent an assembly of any citizens seeking redress of their grievances. As a matter of fact, the injunction has been so employed.

The injunction has been employed, not once, but many times, to prevent the discussion of public questions. Responsible editors of newspapers have been jailed for venturing to express opinions on matters the discussion of which has been interdicted by judicial order. The Craig case is still fresh enough for us to believe that there are judges on the bench today who, either for the sake of personal vengeance or to serve masters other than the public welfare and justice, are quite willing to use the power of injunction and the correlative power to punish for contempt as a means of denying to the people their elementary liberties. The most absurd use of the injunction of which we have heard came to light last week when a judge in Lincoln, Nebraska, issued a writ restraining some lawless individual from flirting with a stenographer. If the writ was violated, said the court, the culprits would be brot before him, under contempt and sentenced for as long a term of imprisonment as he might think fit and proper.

The most ominous aspect of all this growth of the power of judges, transcending the fundamental law of the land, is that it makes it possible to mete out punishment without trial by jury. A man brot before a court under contempt charges has not the right to a jury trial. Nothing stands between him and unjust punishment save the temperance or wisdom of the judge, and it many times has happened in the courtroom that the judge is neither temperate nor wise.

We do not propose to become excited at the mere implication of these evils. They exist, and they are growing greater every day. Laws are constantly being put upon the statute books which enable judges for issue both the injunction and the contempt proceeding as part of their entire equipment. But it is a bad time, perhaps, that a people get back for the hand of government that beatest. Not until the people of this country are aroused to the extent to which they have been duped will there be any hope of redress.

The growth of this property is simply one sign, the symptom, that we worship law rather with what a Greek philosopher called the good fetish of a tyrannic majority in the exercise of power. We forget that the guarantees which our ancestors wrote into the law are the safeguards of our liberties, and we allow impatient men to demand the abrogation of our political existence.

THE CHILDREN AT CHRISTMAS TIME

The mother of these four children says that she has used Father John's Medicine for the past twenty years and in cases of severe colds she believes it has no equal. In a recent letter she said, "I have used Father John's Medicine for twenty years. I knew of its value and used it long before I was married. I have given it to all of my four children and for croup and severe colds I think it is very good". (signed) Mrs. Rose G. Kuffe, White Plains, N. Y.

Millions of mothers depend on Father John's Medicine to keep their children well and strong and to restore their strength after any illness. They know that it has had more than 68 years of success for colds and coughs, and as a tonic and body builder.

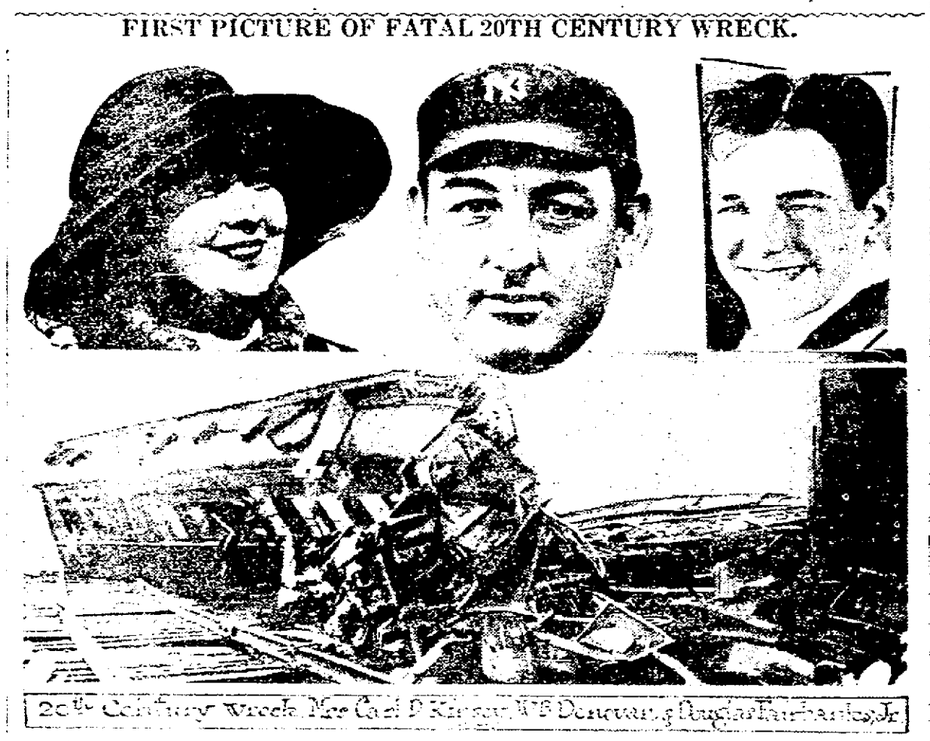
FIRST PICTURE OF FATAL 20TH CENTURY WRECK.



20th Century Wreck Mrs Carl D Kinsey, Wm Donovan, Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

Here is the first picture of the fatal wreck of the Twentieth Century Limited, the New York Central's crack train, near Forsyth, N. Y., 30 miles from Erie, Pa. The first section of the train struck an automobile and the second section halted to permit an investigation. The third section crashed into the second section, killing nine and wounding scores. Among the dead was William E. ("Wild Bill") Donovan, of Philadelphia, manager of the New Haven baseball team and former manager of the New York Yankees. Another was Mrs. Carl D. Kinsey, of Chicago, wife of the vice-president of the Musical College of Chicago, who, himself, was seriously injured. According to Dr. C. O. Thorne, a woman physician who did valiant work among the wounded, the real hero of the day was Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who plunged into the wreckage and aided many of the wounded. The real hero of the day was Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., second from left, son of Douglas Fairbanks, who plunged into the wreckage and aided many of the wounded to safety.

ABE MARTIN On Bill Hohenzollern's Return to Germany

QUIET INDIGNATION.

Th' current issue o' th' Weekly Slip Horn carries th' follerin' merciless an' rough shod editorial on th' possibility o' Bill Hohenzollern returnin' t' Germany: Who can't hark back t' th' beginnin' o' th' world war, an' th' invasion o' Belgium, an' th' sinkin' o' th' Lusitania an' all th' ridicule that wuz poked at our note writin'? Who can't recall what a time we had tryin' t' be neutral, an' then, when we had t' finally jump int' th' war, who among us kin fergit th' awful three years o' conservin', an' knittin', an' half-cooked cornbread, an' no sugar, an' savin' an' givin', an' havin' t' listen t' four minute speeches, an' slackin', an' worryin', an' watchin' th' newspapers an' weepin'? Who can't recall all th' pictures o' devasted France? Who's forgotten that th' German hordes laid down jest as our soldier boys got t' goin' good, an' before th 'terrible conflagration had even singed th' fatherland? An' who kin fergit how th' eyes o' th' world wuz centered on Versailles, an' what a roar echoed when it wuz rumored that th' United States wuz fer a soft peace? We don't care t' discuss th' league o' nations an' what might have been, or politics, or th' disposal o' surplus army supplies, or th' purchase o' hospital sites, or all th' ugly suspicions an' costly investigations as a result of our mixin' in th' war, but we do like t' remember when we wuz all united int' one big paterotic American family givin' our time an' treasure an' sons t' save th' Anglo-Saxon race from destruction. An' we'd like t' know what this country thinks o' th' ole ex-kaiser shakin' th' sawdust off an' gathering up his traps an' sneaken' back int' Germany, th' celebrated ex-kaiser who's directly responsible fer plungin' th' whole world int' th' worst war in all history, who's directly an' solely responsible fer nine million deaths, t' say nothin' o'

Girl Gnaws Rope In Vain Attempt To Rescue Man Who Hanged Himself

LONDON, Dec. 14. — Gnawing the rope with her teeth, Elizabeth Clark, a seventeen-year-old girl of Poplar, London, vainly attempted to save the life of Carl Anderson, a seaman, who committeed suicide by hanging.

Walking with her young brother the girl saw the man hanging in a disused timber yard. She shrieked to some men passing to come to her aid, but they only looked in and went away.

She told her brother to chase after them for a knife, but all declared they did not possess such a thing.

Then, unsuccessfully, she tried to gnaw the rope thru with her teeth, with the man's great gaping eyes staring wildly at her all the time. Finally she found a piece of tiling and sawed thru the rope, but by that time the man was dead.

At the inquest she told the coroner that she was not frightened after she saw the man's first stare. The coroner allowed her a fee of five shillings for her trouble.

"LUCKY 7" COMES BACK ON MONDAY

The Ohio Lucky 7 orchestra from Defiance, O., which made such a decided hit in Coshocton on two nights, Noember 5 and 6, will furnish music for the Belvedere dance at Red Men hall, Monday evening.

The dancing begins at 8 o'clock. It was in response to a popular demand that the Belvederes had this orchestra to play a return engagement.

A simple balancing device has been invented by a Californian to test the relative freshness of eggs.

MANY FARM CHILDREN PLAN TO LEAVE LAND

Tendency More Marked Among Girls Than Boys, Survey of Picked Group Shows

Most of the farm boys who won county championships in Ohio club projects last year expect to stick to the farm, but a majority of the girl winners expect to come to town.

From answers to questions obtained from 513 of the 673 country youngsters who, picked as the best in their home counties, spent Club Week at the Ohio State University, it appears that exactly 60 percent of the boys and 40 percent of the girls look forward to rural life.

Club leaders at the college, so announcing, add that many of the youngsters who propose to leave the land will do so against their will, simply because there seems no chance for them to get land or make the sort of home they want, out where they live. To another question which asked "would you rather live where you do live, or in a large city such as Columbus," only 2 1-2 percent of the boys and 11 percent of the girls indicated preference for city life.

Another section of the questionnaire showed that of the 513 youngsters who answered, 86 took their first train trip when they came to Columbus for the week, and 334 spent their first night in a hotel.

The 513 boys and girls reported owning 2,953 head of cattle, hogs and sheep, and 9,324 head of poultry. The children's ages ranged from 12 to 18, and their bank accounts aggregated $50,854, almost an even $100 apiece.

DRAMATIC CLUB TO GIVE THREE PLAYS WEDNESDAY NIGHT

On Wednesday evening beginning at 8 o'clock, the Dramatic Club of the Coshocton high school will present three one act plays in the Central auditorium.

The plays are: "The Burglar," "Rain" and "The Dangerous Experiment." The cast contains some of the best talented students in the high school.

The cast of plays follows:

"The Burglar"—Helen Wilson, Neil Thrapp, Ruie Wiggins, Genevieve Richards, Mary Miller.

"Rain"—Jean Thompson, Russell Clark, Samuel Murphy, Edward Vedy.

"The Dangerous Experiment"—Norman Kaser, Baxter English, Robert Temple, Marvin Larcombe, Thomas Miller, Robert Salvage, Anna Metz, Doris Young, Thelma Bradford.

Automatic apparatus that switches on an electric light, turns on oxygen and sounds an alarm if a person be accidentally locked in a bank vault has been invented by a New York architect.

KLAN IS DEBATED IN WARSAW SCHOOL

The Ku Klux Klan question has recently been extensively debated by the students and teachers in Warsaw high school. One of the teachers in that school took a decided stand in opposition to the Klan, it is said.

A fiery cross was burned, supposedly by the Klukers on Fisher's hill, Thursday night.

How this Newspaper Gave You the World's News First Every Day Last Month

YOU were told, on October 25th, by this newspaper in a dispatch from London, that the United States and Great Britain would join hands in negotiations to SAVE THE PEACE OF THE WORLD through an international conference, that would attempt to settle forever the vexing question of German reparations.

YOU knew the great fact TWELVE HOURS BEFORE official WASHINGTON or London knew it.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

received the momentous information in advance from a high official personage who had learned to trust INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE. And that news was transmitted to YOU—

Accurately--Impartially--Swiftly

The triumph of INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE was made complete twelve hours later when the State Department at Washington, in an official announcement, verified the dispatch in every detail.

In like manner an INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE dispatch told YOU on October 6th that Mathies, leader of the Rhineland secessionists, had announced that a Rhenish republic would be set up independently of Germany "before Christmas."

The secessionist leader made his prediction in a dingy restaurant in Dusseldorf where an INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE correspondent found him breakfasting, with a revolver beside his plate as a protection against expected assassins!

The plans of the secessionists revealed by INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE came true in all respects. On October 21st the RHINE REPUBLIC ACTUALLY WAS SET UP under Mathies' Leadership.

Read the news dispatches of INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE regularly. It's slogan

DAVID MEETS A REAL-FOR-SURE PLOWMAN.

DAVID found a stick and poked it into a fresh pile of dirt then ran back to the stump and sat down to wait.

Pretty soon out peeked a funny little head. It whisked back just as quickly as it came out and before David could even think out crawled a funny little furry creature. He looked all around, then sprang. David he sat up on his haunches and wiggled his very big ears.

"So you're the boy who has been disturbing my neighbors," he snapped crossly. "If it gave you any pleasure, I'm glad." And he leaped in full the loose dirt back over his doorway.

"What a second, wait a second, Mr. Hat," cried David. He wanted to see the little fellow more plainly.

"Whose Mound Is That?"

"Don't call me a rat!" he exclaimed with a disgusted switch of his long tail. "I'm Gippy Gopher, the Plowman. Why should I stand here and let you catch me?"

"Oh, Mr. Gippy Gopher, the Plowman," laughed David softly. "I wouldn't catch you for the world. You see, we boys have to find something out in the meadow to talk about in school tomorrow, and I thought of your mound. Whose mound is that?" And David pointed to one of several mounds of fresh dirt scattered over the meadows.

"Mine," laughed Gippy Gopher, the Plowman. "You can't have too many exits in time of danger."

"Then you have enemies?" queried David, coming a wee speck closer.

"I'll say I have," laughed Gippy Gopher, running over and sitting down beside David. "But as long as you're not one of them, I don't mind talking to you. Of all my enemies, Man, the Gopher Snake and Gloomy Weasel are the most dangerous. That's why I do most of my work underground."

"Why do they call you a plowman?" asked David. "Father plows this field along here, you know."

"Yes, I know," laughed Gippy Gopher the Plowman. "Well, doesn't he turn the dirt over and over and mix it? Well, I do the same thing, only instead of turning it up from the outside, I dig down under the surface and plow my way under the ground, turning the ground over and under as I do. The only difference is that your dad plows with a machine while I plow this way."

Gippy Gopher began digging with his long front claws and poking the loose dirt with his nose. "Some folks think I carry the dirt out in my pockets, but I don't any such thing," he said. "I only use these pockets to carry my food in." He stopped digging and showed David the two lovely fur pockets in his cheeks. "Now, Chipmunk has pockets, too, but his are on the inside of his cheeks and mine are on the outside. I like mine the best."

"Yes, I believe I should, too," said David. There was a rustle in the grass. Before David could blink his eyes, Gippy Gopher had whisked back into his house and closed his doorway, just as David's big dog pounced on the bush.

"Oh, Tige, you spoiled a good story," said David, patting his dog's head. "But never mind, I've learned a lot about little Gippy Gopher." And whistling merrily, David ran toward the house while Tige trotted at his heels.

FASHION DECREES SCARF IN MANY MODES

The Final Touch Which Completes the Frock or Coat

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW

ONCE in ever so often the scarf seems to come back into a place of prominence. It may appear as the final touch to a top coat, as the separate scarf worn with other outer wraps or as a necessary finishing touch to the one-piece frock.

In the sketch above the latter case is true. Both of the frocks shown are more finished and more stunning because of the jaunty scarfs used to top them off.

The model at the left is of cinnamon colored jersey with a fine design of orange embroidery on the skirt and scarf. The scarf is lined with orange jersey and tacked to the rounded neckline in one place so it may wrap softly about the neck and let the ends drop where they will.

Knitted fabric in a striking combination of black and orange makes the other frock, which effects a smart circular treatment by means of cleverly inset strips of plain black knitted fabric. The scarf repeats these black insets at either end and they are also used to finish the sleeves. This scarf is unattached to the frock and is simply drawn softly about the neck over the slightly rounded neckline.

Another smart fad is seen in the use of a gaily colored silk scarf, wrapped about the neck and knotted at the back, allowing the ends to swing free.

YOUR HEALTH

Children Must Drink Milk to Supply Needs of Body

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,

United States Senator from New York,

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

A CHICAGO dispatch tells about the boycott of the dealers permitted to sell pure milk in the public school buildings. The dealers advanced the price of the half pint bottle from three cents to four. As a result the children would not buy the milk for their usual luncheon and turned to unsuitable substitutes.

I am telling you about this because I want you to hear the very wise proclamation of the superintendent of the Chicago schools, Mr. Peter A. Mortenson. He said this:

"Children who devour jelly beans and lollypops can never make good at their studies as well as those who drink milk freely."

It is stimulating and encouraging to have an educator take this advanced position on a great public health problem. Too little attention is paid by some teachers to a matter having so direct an educational application. There can be little intellectual progress in the absence of good health, which, in its turn, is so dependent on proper feeding.

We may hear about the exceptional mental development of some person who has made a noble fight against disease and physical distress. But such cases are rare, decidedly exceptional. The rule is that bad health in infancy and childhood has prevented educational progress and the desirable preparation given by the public school.

You cannot have health without proper and sufficient food. Without the building materials and good blood you cannot have a well constructed brain, kept normal and vigorous by a never failing supply of life's current.

I have no objection to jelly beans and lollypops unless they are substituted for real food. I do not object to them when they are indulged in at such a time as to not destroy the normal appetite for substantial food.

There are some things about food you should never forget:

The purpose of food is not to satisfy and destroy hunger. Its purpose is to supply the needs of the body. In children it must replace the tissues torn down by activity and, in addition, it must supply the material for growth.

Jelly beans and lollypops won't do these things. Milk will. Superintendent Mortenson is right. There can be no physical growth or mental development in the absence of good milk.

It isn't the children alone who need this advice. It should be heeded by the clerk, the stenographer, manicurist, carpenter, barber, painter, teacher, lawyer, doctor, preacher, housewife—everybody. Nobody can make good at any job without enough of the right food every day.

Answers to Health Questions.

L. M. R. Q.—I have had a dark blue spot on my lip for the last ten years. Is this cancer? It has never troubled me. Shall I have it treated?

A.—This is quite evidently not a cancer from your description. If, as you say, it has never troubled you, I would suggest that you leave well enough alone.

Y. M. Q.—Will it be all right to use yellow oxide of mercury ointment, one per cent, for granulated eyelids?

A.—Yes, it is all right to use on the eyelids at night before retiring. Also bathe your eyes with a solution of boracic acid once or twice daily. If the condition persists, consult an eye specialist for an examination and further treatment.

J. B. L. Q.—Will you kindly tell me what to do for enlarged pores on and around my nose?

A.—Apply hot and cold compresses to your face, alternately, for ten minutes each, daily. This will help to make the large pores less noticeable.

MRS. N. Y. Z. Q.—Is it injurious for a person to practice deep breathing in the Winter if she is suffering from a severe cold or bronchial trouble?

A.—No, deep breathing in the Winter will not aggravate these conditions. It would prove very helpful if practiced properly. You should inhale through the nose and exhale through the mouth.

By Taking the Proper Exercises You Banish Sluggish Feeling

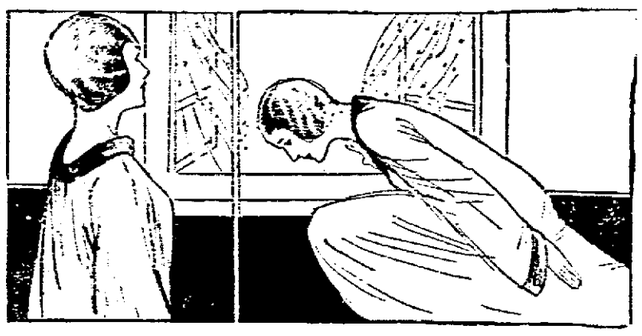
By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

IF all women would only realize the difference between a perpetual feeling of sluggish inactivity and its opposite, a feeling of wanting to be up-and-about every minute and of finding that the world is too full of interesting things for one really to get around to them all, there would be more beautiful women.

I make this latter statement because the proper understanding of the effects of exercise would mean that more women would pursue it regularly. And the pursuit of exercise and the pursuit of beauty are synonymous.

So many worth-while results come from proper exercising! Of course, the physical results are very evident. Color and sparkle and well-rounded lines cannot go long unnoticed.



Stand Before Your Window, Breathing Deeply.

The mental results, too, amply repay themselves. You feel so bright and happy and alert that you make better company for those with whom you come in contact as well as for yourself. If you are thoroughly healthy and happy, you know, you can never be bored. You are bound to take a keen interest in all that goes on about you, and because of this you interest others and they seek your company.

This feeling of giving something to the world and gaining something in return helps any woman to be more charming and lovely.

Now perhaps you often feel sluggish, and recognize this as the result of insufficient exercise. If you do, I hope you are not the type of woman to continue feeling this way without doing something about it.

The message I want to bring to you is that exercise is really not half so trying as those who have never really taken it up choose to think it is.

Many women shudder at the very suggestion of exercising when they really never have exercised enough to know whether it is boring or otherwise.

Why not give yourself a fair chance and try it out? I feel sure that if you try some easy, pleasant exercise in the morning when you get up, you will learn to your own gratification that you feel infinitely better, and will find yourself really looking forward to your first few moments after rising. You will admit that any pleasant diversion that brings this about is worth while, for many of us would rather lie a-bed awhile than get up in the morning!

First, I suggest that you slip on a warm wrapper and stand before your window, breathing as deeply as you know how, for a few moments before you close your window.

After that you should feel braced and vigorous enough to do the following exercise with keen enjoyment.

Stand erect, chest well out, chin in and heels together.

Now charge forward with your right foot diagonally out in front of you.

Bend over till your chin touches your right knee, or comes as near as possible to touching it.

You should do this about twenty times a day for good results.

WINIFRED BLACK WARNS US AGAINST Picking Happiness to Pieces

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

"IT is none of a wife's business what her husband did before they're married."

That's what a San Francisco woman said the other day when she heard that her husband had been named in a sensational divorce scandal in New York.

"What do I care what happened so long ago," says she, "even if it ever did happen? I didn't know my husband then and he never heard of me. What a goose I'd be to let anything like that come between me and my happiness."

Sensible woman—very sensible.

No woman of experience and no man of common sense will find it possible to do anything but agree with her.

What's the use of takin ghappiness and picking it to pieces as a careless woman sometimes picks a lovely rose to pieces—just to be doing something?

Now if this lady had heard these tales about her husband before she married—ah! That might have been a different story.

Winifred Black

Clever, Modern Women

Especially in these days.

The modern woman is not awfully interested in Don Juans and their sort.

She knows a bit too much about eugenics for one thing.

Don Juan may have been a very enchanting lover, and he might even turn out to be rather a nice husband as husbands go, but Don Juan would never have made a particularly good father, and very few intelligent women care to take the risk of passing on the little peculiarities of Don Juan to a son or a daughter.

Son might be exactly like Papa and get away with it, but Daughter, that's not at all the same, and everybody knows these days that daughters inherit from fathers and sons inherit from mothers—and there you are.

The average woman of intelligence doesn't want to take chances with a man who has the reputation of being a gay dog.

She isn't crazy to fit herself for the position of nurse to a middle-aged man whose youthful follies have given him a crop of physical debts to pay.

And then there's the question of character.

"A reformed rake is the best husband." So says the old proverb, but how can you be sure that the rake has really reformed?

The Great Question

Can a man with a roving eye and a susceptible heart turn himself into a steady, faithful husband to any woman on earth, no matter how hard he tries, and can a woman who married a man with a reputation of a gay dog ever feel really safe when she introduces him or sees him introduced to another pretty woman?

"What's bred in the bone will come out in the flesh." Wouldn't you remember that if your little daughter fell in love with what is known as a "man of the world"?

Or would you think: "Well, he's had his fling; now he'll settle down and make the best husband in the world."

It's the old, old question and there doesn't seem to be any new solution to it, does there?

But if you were once married to the man—well, then what the San Francisco woman did would be just about the only sensible thing to do, and you'd do it and smile—whether you felt like smiling or not—wouldn't you?

Revelations of a Wife

Dicky Is Told of the Decision.

DICKY came into the room slowly, with a gloomy face and an elaborately fatigued air. But he brightened perceptibly when he saw his sister, and I guessed that he was as glad as I that her presence would avert, temporarily, at least, a resumption of the acrimonious discussion which had been halted by his departure from the apartment.

"Hello! Harriet," he said cordially. "This is indeed an unexpected pleasure. I pictured you sitting by Edwin's bedside, fanning him with peacock feathers while he slept."

His sister's face reddened, while I could have shaken Dicky for his untimely jest. Harriet would be justified in thinking her brother the source of my knowledge concerning her too assiduous devotion to her husband's comfort.

"I'm not quite the ante-bellum pickaninny yet," she retorted, after a few seconds painably spent in struggling for a composed mien. "And both you and Edwin will have to engage other wielders of peacock feathers. Margaret and I are going out to the farm to-morrow to stay until Mrs. Durkee doesn't need Edwin's daily visits any longer."

Dicky Is Dismayed.

Dicky turned an astonished face upon me, and I noticed with secret satisfaction that there was as much dismay as amazement in the look.

"Going to the farm!" he repeated. "What's eating you both all of a sudden? I thought you never——" he turned to his sister, but she did not permit him to finish the sentence.

"Left Edwin to his own devices?" she finished, sardonically. "I never have, but I'm going to begin to-morrow. He'll probably pester you a lot, when he finds out Margaret is gone, too."

"Old Edwin couldn't pester me," Dicky replied loyally. "But oh! boy! won't we do this town, though, while you girls are gone! Two little boys from school we'll be, two little boys from school!"

He sang the atrocious parody flamboyantly, with a sly glance at me, which I pretended not to notice. I am so familiar with the varying moods and tenses of my Peter Pan that I knew the prospect of my absence had mollified his irritability, and that he was willing in childish parlance to "kiss and make up." But, slower to anger than Dicky, I am also longer in regaining my good humor, and I had no inclination for a reconciliation, with the mysterious accident and Dicky's sudden interest in Mollie Fawcett's voice still unexplained.

"That will be very nice," Harriet commented placidly, "and I think it will do Edwin a world of good."

A Sample Party.

"I don't know about that," her brother said mischievously, "but it will wake him up. I'll bet two cookies with frosting on 'em. I'll tell you what. We won't be stingy, we'll give you girls a sample party tonight. What time is Edwin going to get up?"

"Five o'clock," Harriet returned laconically.

"What's the programme then?"

"Shower, cup of coffee, visit to the hospital to see Mrs. Durkee, a walk, dinner, another walk, reading and bed!"

"Police! Also the reserves!" Dicky ejaculated.

"What a programme for a human being in this twentieth century in little old New Yawk. We never can permit this in the world. I never could hold my head up on Broadway again. Now I'll hand out the real dope on the evening for old Edwin. You girls get into your gladdest rags, and after Edwin has had his shower and his coffee—nothing else, Harriet, not even a cracker, I'll get a limousine, and after wafting him to the hospital, we'll waft him where we not only can feed our faces, but exercise our heels. How about it?"

Winter Products Suitable for Jams.

HOUSEWIVES who make a stock of summer jams do not, as a rule, have to eke out their supply by making winter jams. But sometimes the supply runs a bit low, or an accident may happen.

Wash well two quarts of large cranberries and cook them very fast in just enough water to keep them from burning. When they are cooked to a pulp, add one pound of sugar for each pound of fruit. Cook rapidly until it begins to jell, then add the juice of one orange and one lemon and when it is cooked enough to jell, pour into glasses and when cold seal with melted paraffin. This is a good way to use up the small ends of a cold day plate.

ENGLAND'S GATE TO THE MEDITERRANEAN.

"AS strong as Gibraltar" has become an expression of the superlative of strength. The wonderful fortress at the southern tip of Spain has long been the pride of England. It was torn from the grasp of Spain more than two years ago, and thousands of lives were sacrificed by Dutch and Spaniard before Spain consented to its permanent occupation by England was secure.

The rock itself is a mountain twice as high as the Woolworth Building in New York. Its commanding importance of Gibraltar is some forces.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. Last Summer I met a young man and I fell in love with him.

He goes with another girl. My mother does not object to my having young men friends.

Please tell me how I can win his love. M. J. R.

M. J. R.: Whenever you meet this young man, be charming and entertaining. You might invite him to your home and make his visit so pleasant that he will wish to see you more often. But do not think too seriously of him, my dear. You should have other friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl still in my teens and I am keeping company with a young man of 19. What time should he leave? Should I accompany him to the door?

MICKEY.

MICKEY: The young man should leave at 10 or 10:30. If he linger, you may hint to him in a friendly, kind way that the time for departing has arrived. Yes, my dear, accompany him to the door.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 18 years of age and have been going with a young man six years my senior for about two months. I have known him for about ten years, but he has just lately been coming to see me.

My parents do not like him because he "is not a man's man." They say he doesn't act respectful, but I have never had a friend treat me with any more respect than he does.

Now Annie Laurie, I have many friends, but he is the dearest to me. My parents have never liked any of the young men who came to see me. They make slighting remarks about them. Father says if this young man ever comes to see me again, it will not be good for me. So please tell me what to do. We are not engaged, but I am going to see him even if he cannot come to my house.

I go to Sunday school and church and he will come there to see me if they ever stop him from coming to my home. They don't allow me to even go to church with him, even if we have a chaperone.

Now this is what I want to know. Shall we continue our friendship, as I feel I can never give him up, or shall we drop it just to suit my parents?

GOLDEN LOCKS.

GOLDEN LOCKS: Have an affectionate talk with your parents. Explain to them just how much the friendship of this young man means to you. Remember that harmony is the only road to happiness, so follow the advice of your parents, my dear. You will never regret it.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have known a young man for several years and I am in love with him. He says he loves me more than as a friend. But I had an engagement with him and he did not keep it. Since then he has been talking to a girl friend of mine that lives just across the road from me. He was there Sunday and he didn't come to see me. I saw him at church that night and he spoke to me, but I did not speak to him. Should I have spoken to him?

Please advise me what to do, as I would like to have him for a friend.

BLUE-EYED MARY.

BLUE-EYED MARY: The young man's rudeness did not warrant yours, my dear. Be friendly and amiable when you meet him, but let him take the initiative in making another engagement. If he disappoints you again, then discontinue the friendship. Both you and the young man should have other friends.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT

Mansfield high school boys and girls have thrown down the gauntlet to each other. The ideal qualifications of each sex was ascertained by a composite answer from the H-Y. M. and the H-Y. W.

This is the composite as written by the boys: An ideal high school girl (1) must have a high standard of morals; (2) must have some scholastic ability or at least be sensible and intelligent; (3) must be fairly good-looking; (4) must be a good sport and interested in athletics; (5) must not indulge in "petting parties;" (6) must not be too free in the application of cosmetics; (7) must be friendly and good-natured and (8) must play fair.

The requisites of the girls for an ideal high school boy also had a few musts in them: (1) must be a gentleman at all times and at all places; (2) must not be afraid to use good manners; (3) must not think a girl has developed a "dreadful case" every time she looks at him; (4) must not blame the girl for "petting parties;" (5) must not criticize the use of cosmetics too severely; (6) must not listen to idle gossip; (7) must not be conceited and (8) must have a great respect for religion.

MANSFIELD — Red-headed boys of this town are laying low and keeping a good account of their whereabouts at all times, for the police have been fine-combing the city for the sorrel tops. Four different reports came into headquarters thata red-headed boy with a rifle under his arm was seen in the vicinity of the home of Mrs. Robert Barrett, who was shot and badly injured by a stray bullet. Several red-haired boys have already been questioned by police.

SPRINGFIELD — President Arthur Morgan, of Antioch College, near here, has some novel methods of effecting "cures." One girl who had been spoiled by having too much money was sent to a department store as a salesgirl on a bargain counter. She was indignant at first, but soon began to get the viewpoint of others, and returned to the college cured, he explained.

To cure the diffidence of two boys, they were set to selling coffee from house to house. "It soon cured them," Prof. Morgan said.

CINCINNATI — Percentage of successful petitioners ran high in the Court of Domestic Relations one day here recently. Judge Hoffman tried 14 divorce cases and granted 13 divorces.

Most of the petitioners were young. In nine of the cases tried the women were married before they were 22 years of age—five of them before they were 20.

"I feel sorry for those girls who are married when they are still mere children. They simply aren't old enough to manage a home and they can't be expected to get along," the judge said.

LIMA—Equipped with sufficient guns and ammunition to stand off a small army for days, Harry Shaw and William Smith, who escaped from the Lima state hospital for the criminal insane Aug. 28, were captured in a cave in the hills near South Connelsville, Pa., by a posse. Burglar tools and a quantity of merchandise, alleged to be stolen, were found in the cave. The sheriff and his men surprised the pair and overpowered them before they had an opportunity to use their weapons.

Logan—Harry Huffman, father of a large family, was sentenced to not less than ten years in the Ohio penitentiary on a charge of manslaughter. It was alleged that, while drunk, he ran down and killed James Kelley, 20, a garage electrician, in an auto. Huffman was also a garage employee.

MURRAY CITY—Heavy drilling for gas in the Berea sand is expected to result from a big strike made by the Thomas Oil Co. in that formation. The Thomas Co's. well is the first big producer brought in in this sand.

HALDENVILLE — Homer Stires, rich farmer and kraut packer, was fined $150 for selling cider that possessed too much kick. Dry officers made the arrest.

BEFIANCE — Discarded toys which local Boy Scouts are gathering, painting and repairing will be distributed at Christmas time among unfortunate children of the vicinity.

LIMA - The abolition of whipping in the public schools is one of the reforms which the three members elect of the board of education, who will control the body, are reported to have under consideration. They are said to hold that the use of the rod not only fails to accomplish results but also places in the hands of instructors a power which may too easily be abused. Sweeping changes in school methods and personnel are also expected because of opposition to present officials and methods expressed during the campaign.

BUCYRUS — Dr. Frederick E. Lumley of the faculty of the Ohio State University, told the fifty Crawford county members of the Ohio State Alumni Association at their annual dinner here that if some superstudent were inspired to take the full course of study at the university it would take him just 161 years to complete his efforts. Dr. Lumley also stated that the enrollment at Ohio State this year totals 5,700 students and that an enrollment of 10,000 or more is anticipated for next year.

GALION—A suit for $50,000 damages against the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway Co. has been filed by Carl Spangelberger of this town. He alleges that August 29, last, while employed by the defendant he was thrown from a possible [illegible] owned by the company. The machine, he says, was not in proper repair.

VILARIA — The Council of this village has petitioned the city of Bluffton to supply it with the power section.

DEFIANCE — Land in Richland township which sold for $177 an acre March 1, 1920, was sold recently under the auctioneer's hammer on the court house steps here for slightly in excess of $200 an acre. The land completes the old John Minck farm of 160 acres, considered one of the best farms in the county. Minck originally sold it to a real estate company from whom it was bought at $177 an acre by Isabel L. and Clarence C. Keighin. At the last sale the real estate dealers did it back for $32,500.

BUCYRUS — A petition for $10,000 damages filed by Sam Arnold against John Chapponi claims that the defendant impaired the plaintiff's good name and hurt his business as a fruit merchant by stating that Arnold was making whiskey and fled when prohibition officers raided his house.

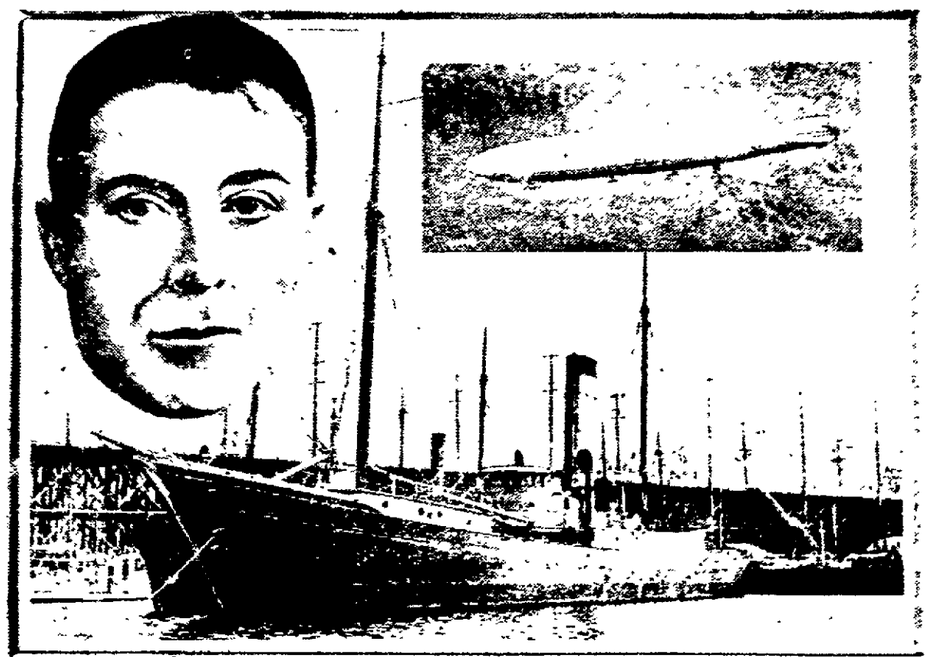
NAVAL FLYERS TO SEEK NORTH POLE



Lieut-Comm. Robert A. Bartlett & The Roosevelt. (Inset) Shenandoah

By direction of President Coolidge, the U. S. Navy Department is preparing to explore the North Pole next year from the air. Tests will be made to determine whether the Zeppelin "Shenandoah" or heavier-than-air machines will be used, but the odds favor the use of the Shenandoah. Lieutenant Commander Robert A. Bartlett (U. S. N. R.), chief aide to Admiral Peary when he discovered the Pole, has been called into active naval service to take charge of the expedition. The Roosevelt, which was used by the Peary expedition, will probably be used by the Government to carry materials to the base in the Arctic, later to be selected.

TODAY:
New York Mecca for Skin Games Market Great for Gold Bricks.

(By JACK CARBERRY)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 — Have you a gold brick to sell?

Bring it to New York!

"German marks—one million for a dime!" The hawker sends up his cry all day along Park Row.

"I print 'em myself—just a plain piece of paper," the peddler confesses. "Profit? Sure; 100 per cent! Sales? Plenty. Earnings? Anywhere from $10 to $15 a day!"

"Sweet singing canaries—just over from the Canary Islands. Cheap—$3 each."

Up in the Bronx—that forest of apartment dwellings, where 2,000 folk pack into every city block—hundreds have bot these gleaming yellow "Dickies."

And with the first bath for the bird discovery—they are English sparrows.

You meet him slinking in the shadows of a doorway, any place from City Hall to Columbus Circle. In manner and appearance he is just what he tells you—a truck driver.

The bulge beneath his coat, you discover, is a fur neckpiece.

"Now never mind where I got it—see. It's the real thing—worth $250. I don't mind tellin' you, if you can keep your trap shut about it, that I drive a truck—see! Truck drivers haul furs lots of times—see!"

You pay $50 if you're awfully foolish—$15 if you bargain.

The wife later informs you the game rabbit-skin piece is selling at department stores for $3.

"Nix; I'm thru—thru forever. I was making my share until the gang went and bumped off a pair of revenue officers. The game got too dangerous for me—I quit.

"But I can tell you where I can get you genuine Scotch—$5 a bottle. Just in from the ships."

And so you buy.

The Scotch was made in an East Side cellar, the labels printed on the same press that turned out the German marks.

Shift the scenes.

Following the mark seller, the truckman, the canary bird seller and the bootlegger home. You'll find him and his blonde mamma, bedecked in jewels, in a Riverside flat. Perhaps he is keeping a bachelor apartment in the avenue. (On the wall you may see his Bachelor of Arts degree.)

day in holiday season.

"Scotch from the boats at $8 a copy," is making profits of $500 a day for many a New Yorker, records reveal.

The canary bird peddlers by actual count, sold 240 birds at $3 each—$720—in one hour.

and the movement of freight is rapidly approaching normal. By these American public at least 100,000 new houses will stand within the burnt district of Tokio. In other words, nearly one third of the houses destroyed will be replaced, usually, of course, by smaller and more modest structures. The population housed in barracks and tents is steadily and rapidly diminishing. Plans for permanent reconstruction are being pushed rapidly and will shortly receive Parliamentary sanction. New thorofares will be cut and old streets will be widened in order to relieve congestion and assure greater safety to our people in the future. Public utilities which produce revenue will receive attention first. As to costly improvements which do not produce revenue, we shall proceed cautiously as finances permit. Our objects now is to lay the ground plan for new and better cities, leaving much of the actual rebuilding to the future. We hope that when our work is done the American people will find reason for rejoicing in having helped us so generously in the hour of our calamity.

Adams has painted portraits of a number of prominent persons. One of these, of the late President Harding, was completed only a few days before the Chief Executive's fateful Western trip. Others have been made of Prince Ribosco, Rumanian Minister to the United States, Irving Cobb and his daughter, Meredith Nicholson, Booth Tarkington, James Whitcomb Riley, Kenesaw Mountain Landis and W. road earnings annually and makes it necessary for the interstate commerce commission in making freight rates to take into account this legal limit of earnings. The western radicals are insisting that this section of the Transportation act is blocking a reduction in the freight rates. Mr. Bruce comes from Maryland where prominent constituents have been leading the fight for the retention of the earning clause of the Transportation act. It isn't a matter of persons in the senate but a matter of principle and in this case party lines tend to disappear.

Over in the house the Democrats of the conservative group have taken a position somewhat analogous to Mr. Bruce in that they refuse to become involved in a contest of personalities but wish to vote on principle. The resolution proposed by the radical Democrats would have meant, if adopted, a working arrangement with the insurgent Republicans so that the slate of committee places would have been upset. To win Democratic support the insurgent Republicans promised to allot an equal number of places to the Democrats and Republicans on important committees. The argument advanced by the insurgent Democrats was that the proposition should be accepted in order to insure liberalization of the rules and the Democrats could vote the insurgent Republicans fought when they delayed the election of Representative Gillette to the speakership last week.

But the conservative leaders in the Democratic caucus won out by stating that the rules were going to be liberalized anyhow and that the Republican leaders had pledged themselves to consider revision of the rules in thirty days. There would be ample opportunity said men like Representative Garner of Texas, to consider changes in the rules and the Democrat could vote then as they pleased, those who believed in liberalization joining with those of the Republican party who believed likewise.

But in the meantime to put the Democratic party in the position of obstructing progress by insisting on committee places for individuals thru a trade with the insurgents of the other party was [illegible] to be unwise. Hence the Democrats were pledged to vote for the plan of committee organization approved last week which is based on the ratio of Republicans and Democrats elected to the house. An American flag, which was held by two Boy Scouts, was raised to the ceiling in the center of the gym, while the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." The spectators rose while this patriotic selection was played.

All reserved seats to the games last evening were sold at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. At least an hour before the first game, the fans had comfortably filled the gym. A half hour before the first contest the gym was filled to capacity and fans were forced to stand. More than one thousand persons saw the games.

Cheer leaders Bernard Smith and Annabelle Glenn accompanied by the students, entertained the fans with their various yells all thru the games.

At 7:40 p. m. the Bexley lassies entered the gym for practice amidst cheers. The Coshocton girls entered at 7:42. They were given a rousing reception.

The game began at 7:55 p. m.

Following are some of the high spots of the first game:

First quarter. Purcell missed a free throw. A personal foul was called on Voorhes and Captain Norma Hieronymus of Bexley missed two free throws. Bassett missed free throw and so did Jones. Ruth Purcell made the first score of the game with a free throw. The fan went wild. The Bexley captain dispatched with a free throw. There was a lot of fouling on both sides which cut down interest in the game.

Captain Hieronymus [illegible] the ball two straight times on free throws. She followed with another shot foul. Purcell made one out of two trials. Bassett dropped in a shot foul. Purcell tied the score with a free throw. The Bexley captain made a shot foul. She broke the score up by which the whistle blew, ending the first period. The score was 6 to 1 in favor of Bexley. There were no field goals made on either side in the first period.

2nd quarter. Bassett made a free throw. Captain Hieronymus duplicated with a shot foul. Kruckeberg dropped in the first field goal of the game. Purcell followed with one free throw out of two trials. The Bexley captain dropped in another free throw. Bassett made Coshocton's first field goal of the game, and soon afterward a free throw. Captain Hieronymus buried the ball and for a shot foul. Purcell concluded the period by placing the ball in the receptacle on a free throw. Bexley led the period by a margin of 1 point, 11 to 10.

Third quarter.—Hieronymus caged the ball for a field goal and also broke the fans to their feet when she made two perfect free throws. Kruckeberg pocketed the sphere for another field goal. The Bexley captain dropped in another shot foul. Purcell made one free throw out of two chances. Leone Dencer was checked when she dropped in a side made two perfect free throws. Hieronymus followed with a free throw. Again Purcell scored a free throw and then a field goal.

The fans cheered. Purcell buck [illegible] the ball for another free throw out of two trials. At this stage of the game Coshocton forged ahead of Bexley and remained in the lead the remainder of the game. Dencer again electrified the fans with her clever shooting. Kruckeberg retired from the game on three personal fouls and three technical fouls. The period ended 22 to 15 in favor of Coshocton.

Fourth quarter. The fourth quarter was spirited. Both teams were anxious to win. C. H. S. made 11 scores in the final period and Bexley was held to 5 points. Captain Dencer and Captain Hieronymus retired from the game in this period on personal and technical fouls. The Bexley captain was broken hearted when she retired. Bexley failed to score easily after she left the floor. The game ended 33 to 24.

The dedication ceremonies followed.

The Coshocton and Canton basketeers entered at 9:30 p. m. and the fans gave them a big reception.

The Canton quintet displayed better team work, defense and offense than any other team Coshocton has ever played. They were fast from start to finish and had the ball at will.

Despite the one sided score, the fans were pleased with the game. The first quarter ended 10 to 1. Captain Squire made Coshocton's first field goal in the second quarter. The second period ended 16 to 2.

Meyers, who was sent in the game in the third period after Butcher passed Huff, made the second and final field goal for the locals. The third quarter wound up 27 to 4 in favor of Canton.

The Canton coach used substitutes after he knew the game was put on ice. The game ended as Squire attempted a free throw and missed.

The girls' game was played by girls' rules resulting in much fouling.

about two years ago, a month after her son, Ralph Courtright, was buried in this city.

Mr. Courtright was the father of the late Ralph Courtright, a member of Uncle Sam's army, which went overseas. His son was the first Coshocton-co boy killed in service. That is why the American Legion in this city named their post in honor of him. Ralph was killed on October 12, a month before the Armistice was signed.

Floyd Courtright was born in November 17, 1871 in Coshocton. He was a lifelong resident of this city.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. K. A. Kitchens, 1010 east Chestnut-st and the following children: Mrs. W. W. Fletcher, this city and Walter, Claud, Davis, Oliver and Lillian, all of the late home. One sister, Mrs. G. W. Dencer, 1010 Chestnut-st and three grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence in charge of the Rev. W. B. Winters, pastor of the local M. E. church. Burial will be made in South Lawn cemetery.

congress for the money for this work. Regardless, the work went ahead without any kind of knowledge on the part of Secretary Denby as to whether the amount of oil accruing to the government under the leases woul dmeet the demands and needs of the navy.

3—Both Denby and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt admitted on the stand that they had no intimate knowledge that reserve Number One, including 37,000 acres, had been leased at all to the Pan-American Petroleum Co. or of the considerations upon which the lease was made. That is to say, the conditions that induced Secretary Fall to make the lease to Doheny interests.

4—The investigation also has developed that not only Teapot Dome but all naval reserves have been leased to private interests, so that "the navy has no reserve oil lands of its own."

Walsh said that he had just started his investigation into the leasing of navy oil lands, and promised "startling revelations" when the hearings are resumed. Secretary Fall has been summoned to answer charges that he failed to pay taxes on his ranch in New Mexico from 1912 until June 1922 two months after he closed Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

Officials of the Chase Securities Co. New York, have been subpoenaed by Walsh to tell way stock of the Mammoth Oil Co. a Sinclair subsidiary operating Teapot Dome climbed so rapidly between Feb. 1922 and April 1922 when public announcement of the close was made by the Interior Department."

Walsh declared Attorney General Daugherty also "may be called to explain certain transactions regarding the acquisition by the Standard Oil Co. of California, of Section 36 in the Elk Hills Reserve one of the richest single oil producing fields in the U. S."

Fall is expected to take the stand in about ten days, as soon as he recovers from a physical breakdown in New York.

KEARNS CONSIDERS WILLS FALSE ALARM

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. — Jack Kearns, famous manager of the world's champion Jack Dempsey, was quoted today as declaring that Harry Wills would prove a softer mark for the champion than did Fred Fulton, who was knocked out by Dempsey in 18 seconds some years ago.

"It is only in the east that Wills is regarded as a real contender," Kearns said.

"In the west where they have seen him on the floor they tell me they regard a Dempsey-Wills bout as a joke."

Operations of the booze ring were alleged to have started January 1, 1923 and continued until April. It is charged that their product was offered for sale at $6 per gallon. The indictment alleged that "booze parties" given by members of the ring caused news of operations to reach law enforcement officials. Mayor Unger, it was alleged, was an attendant at some of these parties.

In addition to other offenses, Mayor Unger was charged with having promised protectioon thru his official position as mayor with the aid of police officials and others.

Lang, Thanereau, Clause, Marks and Swigert were indicted as manufacturers. Unger and Bare in one count are alleged to have arranged for Grimes also to enter the manufacturing end of the business.

U. S. Deputy Marshall Weeks will go to Tiffin Monday to bring the men before the federal court here.

Nevin Platt, named in the indictment, is the son of former Common Pleas Judge J. M. Platt. Neil Hoke is the son of former Probate Judge George Hoke.

The case was first investigated by the federal grand jury in October.

At that time twelve were indicted. Unger was not named in the indictment and Judge J. M. Killitts refused to accept the jury findings because of irregularities.

Unger was defeated by John Dreitzeler (Dem.) for re-election as mayor last November.
